Amusements.

Why are pretty girls' eyes like an ostrich's? Because they are apt to give the best looks.

What I bid you say, your honor, that the man was intoxicated, not by my means. But this will say: When I last saw him he was washing his face to a red paddle and drying it in the door mat!

A. A. Palmer, angling in the rain, was observed to keep his line under the arch of a bridge. Upon being asked the reason he replied: "Sure bid won't the fishes be crowding there to keep out of the wet, ye spalpeen?"

Some tasteful individual very correctly reported that the best lip salve in creation is a kiss. This remedy should be used with great care, however, as it is apt to bring on an affection of the heart.

Mr. Buchanan, M. P. P., has offered to give up Cleatmore, Park during the period of the visit of his Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, should the Government decide on Hamilton as the most desirable place of residence for him.

Domestic Recreations.

To WHITEN THE TEETH.—Mix honey with finely powdered charcoal, and the paste is a deadly.

To PREVENT MOTHS IN CARPETS.—Rub or steep around the edge of carpets and on them salt and pepper, and they will not eat them in the least.

PAU-ACHE IN CHILDREN.—The ear-ache is usually caused by a sudden cold. Steam the head over hot herbs; bathe the feet, and put into the ear cotton wet with sweet oil and paraffine.

PINE CAKE.—One pint of dough, one teaspoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of butter, three eggs, one teaspoonful of paraffine, with the addition of some raisins and spices.

Boiled POTATO, PUDDING.—Eight potato-sized quarters of a pound of butter, one gill of milk, four eggs, and as much flour as will take the whole into a very stiff batter.

MINT SAUCE.—Take a bunch of spearmint, wash it entirely free from grit. Chop it fine, and mix with it one gill of vinegar, and a quarter of a pound of sugar. This sauce is to be eaten with roast lamb.

TRACCO PAPER.—Mix together by a gentle heat one ounce of Canada balsam and a quarter of a pint of spirits of turpentine; with a horse brush dip it thinly over one side of good tissue paper. It dries quickly, is very transparent, and is not grey; therefore does not stain the object upon which it may be placed.

To REMOVE GREASE FROM BOOKS.—Lay upon the spot a little magnesia, or powdered chalk; and under it the same; set on it a warm flat iron, and as soon as the grease is melted, it will be absorbed, and leave the paper clean.

PUTTING IN.—We would respectfully inform our subscribers that we will do all of their "putting" this spring, on the following liberal terms:

A first class puff—One fine hat.
Second, " " One pair of boots.
Third, " " One pair of fine shoes.
Fourth, " " One silk cravat.
Fifth, " " One baby frock.
Common puff, " " One diaper pin.

The last named article must be made of silk, and warranted not to scratch. Any of the above articles can be left at the office. Fort Railroad bills, we charge through tickets.

Agricultural.

Culture of Flax.

We clip the following from a report of the Niagara County, N. Y., Agricultural Society, which appeared in the Lockport Journal last week:

Mr. William Robinson presented the following communication for the consideration of the farmers of Niagara County, upon the culture of flax.

I was formerly engaged in the raising and managing of flax, and have drawn the following conclusion: First—the soil best adapted to its culture, is a rich loam; but it will succeed well on almost any soil except sand, provided it be high or hilly land—it will not grow well on low lands or on the borders of streams or rivers. The seed being small, it must not be placed deep in the ground. I would recommend the ground to be well plowed, and thoroughly pulverized by dragging before sowing, and very lightly dragged in after sowing.

The earlier sown in the spring, after the ground is fit to work, the better. One bushel of seed to the acre is the best amount of seed to ensure a good yield of seed and lint; if a less quantity of seed be sown, the quantity of seed would be increased, but the quality of lint would be lessened—and if a little more seed be sown, the lint would be increased, but the seed would be lessened. On low lands the flax is subject to mildew or rust which is of two kinds—the red rust which destroys both seed and lint, and the black rust which affects the stem of the flax and destroys the lint this is the great enemy of flax-growing, but on elevated or hilly lands it is very seldom attacked with either of these kinds of rust. Flax succeeds best after corn or potatoes, or such crops as have been cultivated the previous year, so as to destroy weeds. The ground cannot be too rich yet it must not be made so by manuring the flax ground with manures filled with seed of grass and weeds, which would spring up and destroy the crop. There're I would not recommend manuring the flax ground the season it is sown, except with the following stimulants and manures, to wit: To each acre of land apply one bushel of plaster of Paris, one bushel of fine western salt, one bushel of wood ashes, one bushel of slacked lime—of course varying these manures according to the nature of the soil. If it be a light loam mixed with gravel or sand, leave out the lime; if it be a tenacious soil bordering on clay or rocky soil, be sure and put on the lime. The soil and subsoil in the quantity mentioned, are not only manures but a preventive to the operations of the stem which is often very destructive to flax. Plaster is a strong stimulant, and is invaluable on dry soils by its attractive principles for moisture. The expense of getting in a crop of flax is about the same as oats. The expense of land, plowing usually is $3 per acre; thrashing the seed and cleaning, $1 per acre; dev-robbing and taking it up, $1 per acre; and dressing at the mill, from $2 to $2.50 per hundred lbs. of flax. The average quantity of seed raised is 8 bushels per acre, and the average quantity of flax is 250 lbs. per acre—although this has frequently been more than double, both in seed and lint. The average price of seed is $1.25, and the average price of flax is 90c. per lb.

IMPORTANT TO SHOE MAKERS.

THE Subscriber wishes to inform the Trade in general that he has bought of Mr. Thomas Astorino, Patentee, the full right to Yield and Sell in the North Riding of York, the Improved method of

CUTTING AND CRIMPING.

The great advantages derived from this Patent is, that Crimping in the usual way is entirely done away with, Crimping Machines and Holes are not required. There is also a saving of three to four fourths in one side of upper. This fact alone is well worthy the attention of those who belong to the Trade. Our experience in the business warrants us in saying that this improved method is of great benefit to the Trade than anything yet introduced. The above Patent Right was granted April 5th, 1859. Persons in the Trade wishing to purchase Shop Rights, will please address to the subscriber.
